You decide to search for other life forms and try to communicate with them to get help. As you explore the planet, you come across a small tribe of alien creatures. They appear to be peaceful and curious about you. On approaching them, they welcome you and show you around their village. With the help of your communication device, you manage to communicate with them and explain your situation in hope of getting help. Option 1: Ask them to help you repair your ship Option 2: Offer to trade with them in exchange for materials Option 3: Offer to share your advanced technology with them if they help you repair your ship Option 4: Try to befriend them and convince them to let you stay on the planet for a while until a rescue mission arrives.

You decide to offer to share your advanced technology with alien creatures if they help you repair your ship. They seem intrigued by your proposal, and after some negotiation, they agree. Together, you work on repairing your ship using the available resources on the planet along with your advanced technology. After several days of hard work and collaboration, your ship is finally repaired and ready to take off. You say goodbye to your new alien friends and get ready to take off into space. Suddenly, you realize that one of the aliens has stowed away on your ship. Option 1: Allow the alien to stay with you and welcome them as a crew member Option 2: Try to convince the alien to go back to their planet, and offer them resources to survive Option 3: Contact your home planet and ask for advice on how to handle the situation Option 4: Make the decision to bring the alien back to their planet to protect their safety.
